Once you have decided that you need a divorce, it can feel very overwhelming and many people do not know where to start.

Sometimes, people come to their initial consultation with a stack of confusing papers and no idea where to start.

It's hard to take the first step to reclaim your life when you don't even know what the step is.

Over the years, we have found that many clients feel better if they have an outline of the information we need during their initial meeting with an attorney.

Even if you don't feel like you have control over every aspect of your life right now, you can at least feel like you know where to start.

This organizer is used to get the information we need to help you come up with a plan to reclaim your life and start building a brighter future.
